Activity

Skiing

Skied over to Schlasman's yesterday. Early morning sun exposure on southerlies plus Saturday's wind led to a crust and/or sastruggi setting up by mid-afternoon. Northerlies were spared from the wind and still holding cold snow. A decent sized loose/wet D1.5 came down between laps (probably 1300) in what I believe is called gangstas. South facing, steep, thin and rocky. Not a place you'd expect people to be skiing since there is poor coverage but a good reminder to watch out for overhead hazard since it ran out into Schlasmans gully.

Flat light yielded a mediocre picture at best
