Activity

Snowboarding

Dug a pit at 8650ft on a SE facing slope just a few miles west of Cooke City. ECTP15. Failed and propagated on facets underneath the most recent storm snow about 20cm down, didn't feel like a wind slab but presumably was partially wind loaded from the winds the past few days. Pretty much the entire snowpack under this recent layer is facets separated by crusts, with varying levels of crystal thickness, ranging from larger near the ground to finer higher up. HS 65cm.
